HOW TO DRAW 3-D Letters: Method 2

Step 1. First draw a word with block letters.

You can add serifs (feet) and corners to make it more interesting.

Step 2. Now from the bottom of each letter, and every corner on the outside of the letters, draw a straight line directly downwards. Each line should be the same length.

Step 3. Now you are going to connect the lines to form the 3-D. Draw a straight line from the tip of each downward line to the line directly next to it. Follow the shape of the letter.

Step 4. Color in the 3-D.

How To Draw 3 Dimensional Letters: Method 3 - Vanishing Point

Letters on a page look flat. That is called "2 dimensional".

You can give your letters depth by drawing the sides of the letter, as well as the front. Even though you're still drawing just lines on a piece of paper, your letters will have the "illusion" of depth. They will look "3 dimensional", like they can jump off the paper at you. This is called drawing in "perspective".

In a "3 dimensional" drawing, a "vanishing point" is a point at which all imaginary lines of "perspective" converge. You can place a vanishing point anywhere on your drawing that you wish.

Draw lines from the corners of your letter to the vanishing point.

Then draw a line parallel to the edge, following the shape of the letter.

VANISHING POINT

VANISHING POINT

Why is it called a vanishing point? Because things look smaller as they get further away and eventually become a teeny, tiny little dot in the distance.

HOW TO DRAW A WILDSTYLE "H"

- by Graffiti Diplomacy

Step 1. Start by drawing an "H" with a pencil. You should have 2 vertical strokes and one horizontal stroke.
